

londontalk

talk@thelondonpaper.com

TEXT 88855*

Write to 1 Pennington St, London, E98 1BD Visit www.thelondonpaper.com

YOUR PICTURE OF THE DAY | SIGRUN OLAFSDOTTIR

These smart chaps give visitors to Hay's Galleria, near London Bridge, some amusement. If you've taken a photo of London life, we can publish it. Email pictures@thelondonpaper.com or text 88855

the columnist

ESTHER DANIELS

LET'S GLAM UP FOR THE ALL-GIRL JURY

More often than not, women dress for other women. Whether we want to admit this or not, there is nothing more thrilling than tottering along in killer heels and turning the heads of other women. Dressing for a man takes almost no effort and can be achieved in under five minutes. A show of cleavage and a few inches of leg will have most men dribbling into their chin, but seeking approval from women is more of a complex issue and takes careful execution.

Women are not as easily swayed as men. We are more judgmental and tend to scrutinise and dissect other women. While our male counterparts tend to indulge in ten minutes of intense staring at a woman's anatomy to make a decision on her worth, it takes us under ten seconds. A quick once-over and we've taken in her hair, make-up, clothes, shoes, handbag and accessories. Just

HOW FREE ARE WE?
To Steve, who wrote in about China's human rights abuses ("Olympic

LETTER OF THE DAY

GLORY OF GAMES